Q1: The following reading is an excerpt from "What in the World Will Happen in 2023?" by Richard N. Haass, President Emeritus of the Council of Foreign Relations, published at the beginning of this year. As we head into the eighth month of the year, choose one of the ten predictions and argue for/against it in retrospect and prospect. Your answer should be at least 200 words in length. Indicate the number of the prediction you have chosen.

Q2: The following readings are excerpts from an article and a book on "intersectionality."

(1) Based on the two readings, describe the concept of intersectionality. No copying and pasting please; paraphrase as you write, in your own words. Your answer should be at least 250 words in length.

(2) discuss EITHER how you can/cannot incorporate the notion of intersectionality in your field of study and why/why not OR what would be a viable field or study into which the notion of intersectionality could be incorporated and why. Be as specific as you can in your discussion. Your answer should be at least 300 words in length.
